U. S. FORCES TAKE 3 TOWNS, 2 AIRPORTS

YANKS CLOSE IN ON ENEMY AIR BASE AT MUNDA

Coming Battle May End Jap Control Over Field; Reinforcements Fail.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 14—Green-clad United States troops in frequent gunfire exchanges with the enemy, moved relentlessly forward through New Georgia's jungles today upon Munda.

It might well mark the beginning of the end of that Japanese air base.

The enemy's garrison there appeared doomed to fight it out with what men and weapons were on hand.

Reinforcement by sea had failed. Remnants of a Japanese task force fled the disastrous scene of the Kula gulf above Munda, leaving behind the sunken hulks of a cruiser and from three to five destroyers to add to nine others lost there a week ago.

Air Support Fails

Support by the Japanese air force also failed. Yesterday 18 enemy dive bombers, protected by 10 Zeros, came over bent on pounding our positions. The raiders never reached their objective. American Corsairs and Lightnings dashed into them at Langsdale Point on New Georgia. Four Zeros and a Corsair, whose pilot parachuted to safety, were shot down. The bombers jettisoned their loads and fled.

Death rained daily on the garrison from swarms of American Avenger torpedo and Dauntless dive bombers. Yesterday 32 tons of bombs burst among encamped troops and upon anti-aircraft batteries.

Reenforcement or supply of the imperiled garrison by land was rendered virtually impossible by the wily American fighters.

Today's communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur told of the annihilation of 150 Japanese trapped 10 miles northeast of Munda at Dorgai inlet.

150 Japs Killed

Another 150 Japanese lost their lives off the coast of Vangunu island to the southeast of Munda but they no longer were defending the air base. They had been routed from that island by our troops and were trying to escape in barges.

Vila, Munda's supply depot across the Kula gulf on Kolombangara island, took a new pounding from the skies.

In the jungle perimeter of defenses before Munda itself, two strong points were knocked out by our advancing jungle fighters despite stiffening resistance of the enemy.

On northeastern New Guinea, at the other end of the Pacific offensive, Liberators, Flying Fortresses and Mitchell's dropped over 40 tons of bombs on Salamaua, the enemy air base toward which our jungle troops are fighting, and 31 tons on nearby Lae.

NAZIS THROWN BACK BY RUSSIAN DEFENSE

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, July 14 — German infantry and tank divisions have been pressed back on some sectors of the Belgorod front by Russian forces turning from defense to counterattack, a Soviet communique declared today.

The Red army launched its attack as the Germans reeled back after repeated and unsuccessful attempts to enlarge the wedge they had driven into the Russian lines at terrific cost in nine days of ominous fighting, the bulletin said.

The Russians declared the Nazis had retreated with big losses," but it seemed apparent from front line dispatches that the Germans still were holding stubbornly to much of the territory which they gained in the fighting a week ago.

Elsewhere on the Belgorod-Orel-Kursk front the action lagged. German effort at the northern end of the front which flared into action July 5 had all but died out.

Yesterday's losses in German tanks and planes in all sectors of the central front brought the official Russian totals to 2,772 tanks and 1,261 planes for the nine-day period.

WAGE CEILINGS ESTABLISHED

WLB in Cleveland Announces Maximum Rates Affecting Marion Area.

The regional war labor board in Cleveland today established maximum pay rates it may approve for certain key jobs in Marion, Bucyrus, Galion and Crestline and 34 other Ohio cities.

For these Marion area communities the following wage ceilings have been set: common labor (except service trades) 60; spot welders 70; truck drivers 77½; maintenance carpenters 85; milling machine operators 90; turret lathe operators 95; millwrights, maintenance electricians and maintenance machinists $1.00; tool and die makers $1.15. These rates also apply to Cincinnati (including Covington and Newport, Ky.) East Palestine, Findlay, Lancaster, Leetonia, Lisbon, Piqua, Portsmouth, Salem, Troy and Zanesville and (subject to wage stabilization director's direction) all other Ohio cities.

Lewis M. Gill, regional WLB chairman, said the rates for the first time set up guideposts of what industry and labor "may expect from the board in cases involving comparison of rates in different plants." They comply with the President's hold-the-line order, he added.

The scales, permanent in Cleveland, Cincinnati and Toledo and tentative in other municipalities pending completion of surveys now under way, do not affect workers already receiving higher pay, the WLB declared, while employers paying less than the maximum are not compelled to raise wages.

The WLB said raises still must have its approval and increases all the way up to the maximums may be refused if a sizeable wage jump is involved.

The board said it could approve rates above the maximums only in "rare and unusual" cases or those granted in accordance with the little steel formula.

Employers wishing to pay graduated scales, the board asserted, may seek increases under a range-of-rates formula instead of flat maximums. The midpoint of

Gen. Rommel's Plane Reported Shot Down

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 14 — British sources had no confirmation today of a roundabout report that German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel was shot down by allied fighter pilots Tuesday while enroute to Sicily aboard an axis transport plane.

The report, which was said to have originated from a broadcast by a German underground radio station "Atlantic," was carried by the Swedish newspaper Svenska Dagbladet and sent to London last night by a Reuters correspondent.

Rommel, according to this report, was said to have been traveling under strong fighter escort to take command of axis forces in Sicily. The report said he was accompanied by Gen. Siegfried Westfals, Lieut. Col. Kiehl and three Italian staff officers.

JOHN ROOSEVELT AT SICILY

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 14—Lieut. John Roosevelt, son of the President, was one of the officers on an American destroyer which protected American landings in the Gela bay area on Sicily last weekend, it was announced today.

Mansfield Plant Turns Chunks of Steel Into Shells

By The Associated Press

MANSFIELD, O., July 14—Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company's appliance division here demonstrated today how two-pound chunks of steel are transformed into armor-piercing shot in 80 seconds.

The demonstration was viewed by Army and Navy officers and newsmen during a tour of the plant in connection with awarding of the Army-Navy E pennant only 14 months after complete conversion of the Mansfield works to production of anti-tank shot, aircraft parts, binoculars and other war products.

After machines pound out the 37 millimeter armor-piercing shot, women inspectors check the bullets with the electronic testers registering dimensions less than half the thickness of human hair.

"As soon as we produce several thousand shot," said Works Manager C. L. VanDerau, "army ordnance inspectors pick at random several samples and give them rigid fire tests at Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds.

"If the least imperfection were found, our company would become permanent owner of the whole batch of shot. * * * not one shot produced by our workmen has ever been rejected."

In the binocular department, VanDerau called attention to an automatic tool which he said performs 23 jobs in the mass production of Army field glasses. Each hour the machine produces 60 parts so intricate that 23 different dimensions are created and checked for accuracy to seven-tenths of a thousandth of an inch.

Courts Likely To Test Control Over Appointees

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 14—Can congress fire an appointee of the President?

That question could wind up in the courts, it appeared today, because the 78th congress has done it, and President Roosevelt disagrees.

Mr. Roosevelt said yesterday he did not feel bound by the clause in the deficiency appropriations bill prohibiting use of any of the money for salaries for Robert M. Lovett, secretary of the Virgin islands government, Goodwin Watson or William E. Dodd Jr., of the federal communications commission. They were accused by the Dies committee of subversive preachings and connections.

The President signed the bill because the money was needed but he served notice he would tell congress in a message in the fall that in his opinion the action was unconstitutional.

Navy Develops Speedy Carrier-Based Fighter

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 14—The United States Navy, already the world's leader in development of carrier-based fighter planes, has a new championship contender with a significant name—Hellcat—and the assurance of the Truman committee that it is capable of exceptional performance.

Mention of the plane by the senate committee investigating the war program lifted it from the secret list, but further details presumably must await battle tests, which may not be far off.

Officially, the plane is the F6F, built by the Grumman Corp., which also builds the Wildcat, mainstay of Navy fighters in the South Pacific until the high-speed Vought-Sikorsky Consair (F4U) reached the scene to take over a full share of the burden.

Martinique Cuts All Ties with Vichy, Joins Allies

Admiral Robert To Turn Over Governor's Post to Henri Hoppenot, Due To Arrive Today.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 14 — Martinique, for many months the only French non-axis-occupied territory to hold out against cooperating in the fight to liberate France, returned to the fold today and placed its ships and resources at the disposal of the United Nations.

It was significant to many observers that the formal transfer of allegiance came on the 154th anniversary of the storming of the Bastille — a revolutionary act that marked the birth of French freedom.

Henri Hoppenot, delegate of the French Committee of National Liberation, was due to arrive at Fort De France today and formally take over from Admiral Georges Robert the authority he formerly exercised as French high commissioner of the Antilles.

The state department last night made clear that Admiral Robert—long a holdout against cooperation in the fight to free France—had decided at last to relinquish his authority to a representative of the French committee in Algiers.

The French Antilles (Martinique and Guadeloupe) are in the front yard of the Panama Canal. What goes on there can not be a matter of indifference to Washington.

The state department said Henri Hoppenot had assured the United States government the "facilities and resources" of the French Antilles would be mobilized to the fullest extent in the war against the axis, and that "all presently immobilized French naval and merchant ships" at Martinique would be made available.

Most important of the naval vessels now at Martinique is the 22,000-ton aircraft carrier Bearn. Also at Fort De France are the fast cruiser Emile Bertin, the training cruiser Jeanne D'Arc, various auxiliary vessels and a number of tankers.

Evidence that the United States government was satisfied with the arrangements to turn authority over to Hoppenot was seen in the lifting of the food blockade clamped on Martinique by this country last November, and in the announcement that relief supplies would be sent to Martinique and Guadeloupe without delay.

COMMUNITY PRICE SURVEY TO START

The survey on community prices will start next Monday afternoon, according to an announcement today from the Marion county price panel. At a panel meeting yesterday it was announced that a meeting would be held Monday at 1:30 p. m. in the Y.M.C.A. for the purpose of instructing the price assistants.

The members of the P.-T. A. are being requested to act as price assistants during this survey of the flat ceiling prices, and the presidents of the groups are asked to organize their own members. Detailed instructions will be given at the Monday meeting to each of the assistants and the survey will start immediately after the close of the instruction period.

The flat ceiling price of all commodities effected by the change must be compared with the ceiling price in over a hundred stores in Marion county. The report of the survey must be sent to the Columbus office before July 26.

First Wheat Delivery Is Made in Marion

First Marion county wheat marketed in Marion elevators was brought in yesterday, the Marion Grain & Supply Co. reported today. The wheat, combined Monday on Robert E. White's farm on Harding Highway West, tested 58 pounds per bushel with 14.8 moisture. The yield per acre averaged 32½ bushels, compared with last year's approximately 35 per acre. The price paid was $1.48 per bushel. Last year $1.07 was paid on July 15.

SIMPLER CLOTHING, LESS FOOD AHEAD

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 14—The civilian population was asked today to get along with less canned goods and simpler clothing.

The war food administration (WFA) allocated to civilians 70 per cent of next year's canned vegetables and soups and 53 per cent of the prospective fruits and juices. This will provide a somewhat smaller per capita quota than this year's allotments.

Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the war production board (WPB) disclosed plans to clamp down on the output of expensive fabrics and concentrate priorities to stimulate mass production of low-priced clothing.

"We need not have clothes rationing," said Nelson, if frills are done away with and sheer volume substituted.

Food problems concerned the highly placed officials in the administration. A special advisory committee, it was learned, reported that farm parity prices stood in the way of all-out food production. Parity prices are designed to give agricultural products as much purchasing power as they had in a base period, usually 1909-14. The report said the parity scale is an "utterly faulty mechanism" dating back to "a bygone day."

The war labor board (WLB) was reported set to announce a new policy to dissolve the deadlock with John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers (UMW) over the signing of a contract with the operators. The board was described as satisfied, without the formality of a contract, if union and management comply with its orders.

Stukas No Longer Terrors of the Sky

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 14—An American anti-aircraft officer back from Tunisia expressed the opinion today that the Stuka, vaunted German dive bomber, "is all done."

Lt. Col. John C. Smith of Billings, Mont., commander of an anti-aircraft battalion which destroyed at least 78 enemy planes and claims probables that would run the score well over 100, reported the Stukas are "slow, easy to watch and easy to hit."

GRAND JURY CALLED IN MINERS' STRIKE

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, July 14 — The government made its first move under the Connally-Smith anti-strike act today by convening a special session of the federal grand jury here to inquire into the lingering coal strike that began June 20.

Coincidentally, the number of idle miners in the rich southwestern Pennsylvania coal field, most of whose output goes directly to war-busy steel mills, dwindled from 10,000 to an estimated 3,000. Only three captive or company-owned pits remained down.

United States Steel Corp. reported "a definite improvement" in the Fayette county fields where the strike has centered and announced it would get 24,000 tons of coal from that sector today, as against 16,000 yesterday.

All the others among the nation's 521,000 miners returned previously, but more than half were out on June 25 when congress passed, over President Roosevelt's veto, the act which provides stiff penalties for interrupting production at government-operated plants.

District leaders of the United Mine Workers of America (UMW) have insisted that miners' work stoppages since they were ordered back to work by the UMW national policy committee June 22 are "illegal."

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt's statement yesterday that the mines would be returned to private owners as soon as possible recalled the warning of UMW President John L. Lewis that the truce under which the miners returned would "automatically terminate" if the operators took charge before signing a contract with the union.

SENTENCED FOR TALKING

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 14—A military courtmartial has sentenced Pvt. Arthur J. Ingebredtsen of North Minneapolis, Minn., to five years' imprisonment for disclosing details of a new type combat plane in conversation with two RAF non-commissioned officers in the presence of civilians, U. S. Eighth airforce headquarters announced today. Evidence showed Ingebredtsen had been drinking.

WEST INDIES CHIEF. Admiral Georges Robert, high commissioner of the French West Indies, has agreed to give up his post and will be succeeded by Henri Hoppenot, above, civil affairs director of the French North African mission in Washington. The change of commissioners brings the French West Indies into the war on the Allied side.

U. S. PLANES HIT FOE IN EUROPE

Hundreds of Warcraft Cross Channel To Follow RAF Raid on Aachen.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 14—Hundreds of American warplanes, including Flying Fortresses, hammered at targets in western Europe by daylight today after the RAF had made a heavy night attack on the German Rhineland city of Aachen, center of railway lines linking the reich with France and the lowlands.

German airfields in northern France were believed to have been the objective of the daylight raiders, which staged such a spectacular parade across the channel that thousands of persons in British southeast coast towns congregated in the streets to watch them pass.

For nearly an hour the sky was filled with all types of planes, flying at high altitude.

Twenty British planes were reported lost in the night raid on Aachen, which was accompanied by simultaneous assaults on airfields deep in France by swift Mosquito bombers, Beaufighters and Typhoons. German ground defenses and communications also were the targets of harassing aerial attacks.

One German plane was reported shot down over its base in Holland and two more were shot down during the night over Britain.

The German radio acknowledged that a considerable number of buildings had been destroyed in the raid on Aachen and reported a large number of casualties among the civilian population.

The city, which has a normal peacetime population of 164,000, is situated about 39 miles southwest of Cologne. In addition to being a vital railway junction it is the site of important war industries and coal mining developments. The last attack on Aachen was in February, 1942.

German raiders struck back sharply early today, attacking in waves and dive-bombing a city on the northeast coast of England. At least 12 persons were reported killed and many injured in the city, which was identified by the German radio as Hull. Several houses were demolished, trapping occupants under the debris, the air ministry announced.

Larger Meat Rations Goal of Capital Move

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 14—D. C. Speaker disclosed today that the office of price administration was developing a plan designed to bring about a major increase in civilian meat rations.

Speaker, unofficial but authoritative capital spokesman, declared the plan has influential backing within OPA, but it has not yet been adopted officially and it still must hurdle the highly controversial issue of putting price ceilings on live hogs and cattle.

"OPA officials claim they can bring enough meat to market to increase rations by regulating livestock prices," D. C. said, "but congressional farm spokesmen, the meat packing industry and the livestock raisers all say it can't be done. The can't be done people made their position clear in a series of hearings held by OPA a few months ago."

Speaker said the plan hasn't been developed far enough to indicate just how much more meat might become available to civilians.

LEGION DISAPPROVES HIRING JAP WORKERS

Resolutions Adopted at Bird-McGinnis Post Meeting.

A resolution disapproving the sending of approximately 200 Japanese claiming loyalty to the U. S. government into Ohio for employment in business and other fields was adopted at a meeting of Bird-McGinnis Post No. 142, American Legion, last night. Action by the local post followed a meeting of posts of the Sixth district Sunday at Columbus at which this matter was discussed, and will be an issue at the National convention at Omaha, Neb. in September, members of the post said today.

Reports of the district meeting were given by J. W. Llewellyn, E. M. Brelthaupt, R. A. Todd and A. J. Dripps. Vernon Everett, a member of Post No. 142 at Fullerton, Calif., talked on Japanese activities in California. A citation commending the post for having made its membership quota by March 15 this year was received from the state commander and was presented to Jewell Ralston, chairman of the membership committee by Mr. Llewellyn. The Legion has a membership of 366 in the county, 237 in the local post and 5,827 in the Sixth district, reports show. An invitation was received from the Upper Sandusky post to attend a stag picnic to be held at Upper Sandusky next Wednesday. It was announced that the drive for records for men in service is being continued and that the Anthony Laundry Co. and Omar Baking Co. had donated the use of their trucks for collections. It was reported that 570 boys attended Boys state held at Delaware last month under the sponsorship of the Legion.

PATTON LEAVES BOAT TO DIRECT BATTLE

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 14—Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton Jr., commander of the U. S. Seventh army invading Sicily, leaped into the surf from a landing barge and waded ashore to take personal command of bitter fighting against German tank units opposing the landing, Noel Monks, Daily Mail correspondent aboard a destroyer, reported.

At "General Patton's American bridgehead at Gela," he wrote, "* * * I was told the story of Patton's great personal courage and the magnificent fighting quality of his troops.

"When the Americans landed at Gela they found the town in control of two German tank regiments. During the next 24 hours the fiercest fighting of the whole allied invasion took place. Twice the Germans were driven from the town and twice the Americans were forced right back on to the beaches.

"At this stage General Patton leaped into the surf from a landing barge and waded ashore to take over personal command.

"Step by step the Germans were driven back from the beaches as wave after wave of Americans landed from the troopships. * * * by sunset Sunday the bridgehead was well established and the Americans had pushed the Germans back to a few miles beyond town.

"When General Eisenhower visited Patton's headquarters yesterday (Monday) he warmly congratulated his old colleague on his splendid fighting achievement."

BRITISH PRESS ON CATANIA; SHIPS IN PORT

Americans Take Comiso and Porte Olivo and Railway Town of Naro.

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 14—General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth Army driving up the Sicilian east coast from Augusta toward Catania is meeting only weak enemy resistance, it was announced late today.

* * *

By The Associated Press

American troops in a great three-pronged advance have captured Comiso and Ponte Olivo—two of the 10 principal Italian air bases in Sicily—and the railway town of Naro in a westward thrust, it was officially announced today.

British forces on the east coast meanwhile continued their threatening advance from fallen Augusta upon the great seaport of Catania, and the axis reported fierce fighting inland in the mountains.

Comiso lies just west of Ragusa in southeast Sicily, and Ponte Olivo is nine miles north of the U. S. bridgehead at Gela.

The fall of Naro represents a 15-mile strike inland northwest of Licata, extending the allied holdings on the southern coast of the island to the west.

U. S. Warships Give Aid

Naro, only 12 miles from Agrigento, was captured in the surge of the Americans, a headquarters communique said, and the path of General Patton's men too was being blazed by American warships which pounded Ponte Olivo before it was captured and Porto Empedocle, only about three miles from Agrigento.

Allied navies heavily bombarded Catania airport from the sea early yesterday morning, said an allied headquarters communique which officially confirmed the allied capture of the port of Augusta and Ragusa.

One British and one Greek destroyer were the first to enter Augusta harbor Monday afternoon at 4 p. m.

After taking Augusta, it was officially announced, the British Eighth army began an advance on Catania.

U-Boats More Active

Allied warships, meeting increased enemy submarine activity, gave additional support to the advancing allied armies by bombarding Porto Empedocle, only about three miles from Agrigento, on the south coast, and Ponte Olivio, also west of the main American landing positions.

An allied motor boat flotilla also successfully penetrated Messina strait itself, the water neck between Sicily and the mainland, and engaged two enemy motor torpedo boats, setting them ablaze and driving them ashore. A third enemy torpedo boat escaped, however.

American warships poured shot and shell into shore installations of the enemy in the western sector and gave valuable support to the advancing troops by shelling axis troop formations and tank columns, the communique said.

Following the entry of Augusta harbor by allied warships Monday afternoon, British troops entered the town early today, and the communique said allied troops were going forward all along the front.

It was announced, the 206th Italian division has been almost entirely eliminated in the fighting. The capture of this division's commander, Gen. D'Avet, was announced yesterday, and today's communique said his entire headquarters had been captured as well.

While fleets of bombers and fighters swept the island from end to end and combed surrounding waters to lay down a fiery blockade, a motor torpedo boat flotilla made a rapier thrust at the jugular vein of Sicilian supply and penetrated Messina strait, the two-mile neck of water between the island and mainland. There three enemy motor torpedo boats were engaged Monday night, and two of them set afire and driven ashore.

The Americans now held a line running nine miles inland to Naro, 15 miles northwest of their westernmost beachhead at Licata.

Ponte Olivo is nine miles inland from Gela, another of their beachheads, and Comiso is about six miles west of Ragusa, whose capture, reported yesterday, was confirmed by today's communique.

The semi-circular allied line stretching across southeastern Sicily was now secure at all points and a direct thrust by the British into the Catania plain appeared possible without risk to their rear by an axis counterattack.

1944 Republican Choices Sounded in Three States

Obviously events between now and the nominating convention may bring other candidates to the fore as possibilities, or alter the relative popular standing of the leaders today. Future changes in popularity will be recorded by Institute surveys.

Presidential nominees are picked by delegates in convention, not by the party rank and file, and the personal popularity of a candidate is not necessarily an indication of what the delegates will do. However, in the case of the last two G.O.P. presidential nominations—those of 1936 and 1940, the candidates selected by the conventions were the choices of the rank and file at the time.

Political observers will be especially interested in the comparative popularity of Governor Dewey and Mr. Willkie in New York State.

Judging by the present vote, Mr. Willkie would be left top man in popularity if Governor Dewey definitely remains out of the race.

Canada's Role in War Pictured By Dominion Official in Marion Talks

Voices Appreciation for "Good Neighbor" Aid of United States.

A message from this country's great and friendly neighbor, Canada, was brought to Marion Tuesday by a [illegible] of the Canadian government.

The message came from John A. Marsh, [illegible] the deputy minister [illegible] of munitions [illegible] Canada, in an address given before Marion [illegible] in which he told of [illegible] between his country and the United States and gave an account of Canada's contribution to the Allied cause in [illegible]. The theme of both talks was "Canada's Industrial Front."

Mr. Marsh spoke first in the Harding hotel meeting of the Rotary club [illegible] Harding and in the evening addressed the Y's Men's Service club in its weekly [illegible] at the Y.M.C.A.

In his talk to the Rotarians he said: "Side by side your country and mine have formed the larger part of a great new world. We have tried [illegible] the lives [illegible] we have not had the slightest ambition to be professional soldiers or to fight one another. The border between us is a geographical location and not a Maginot line. We in Canada are proud of our next door neighbor."

Example of Cooperation

Pointing to one notable achievement through friendly cooperation Mr. Marsh said: "The people of the United States of America lead the world in air consciousness, and I think that we in Canada run you a close second. It is only a few weeks ago since the first stage of a great achievement of Canadian - American cooperation was completed. I refer to the military highway to Alaska, which is of as great significance from the standpoint of air travel, in war and in peace, as it is from a highway standpoint.

"Confronted with the common problem of making the West Coast of your country and mine secure Canada and the United States saw the necessity of a series of military air fields between the United States and Alaska as a vital strategic factor in the defense of both countries. This great highway now connects those air fields and is itself a supply route to Alaska. The building of that great highway is a notable saga in the annals of construction and is a tribute to American enterprise. I think we can all be proud that Canada contributed the air fields and the United States the highway."

How U. S. Helped

Acknowledging aid of the United States as invaluable Mr. Marsh said: "Canada's war effort, especially in the early stages of the war could never have reached its present proportions but for the unstinted cooperation we have received from the United States. In the early stages of our industrial effort we depended in large measure on your machine tools, your steel and your coal."

As evidence of how Canada's industrial production has been developed, the speaker pointed out that automotive vehicles produced to date in that country number more than 500,000, of which 90 per cent have gone overseas.

Notable Achievements

He presented this summary of some of Canada's major war accomplishments: has total of over 700,000 men in active service; navy operates 500 ships of war; is air training ground for empire, with nearly 200 airports; has the largest small arms plant on continent; occupies third place in United Nations for cargo shipbuilding, has delivered $50,000,000 worth of tanks to Russia, produces guns of every kind; produces a gun of some kind every minute of the day; has 41 chemical and ammunition filling plants, makes the most powerful explosive now known in this war, exports 70 per cent of all war supplies manufactured; has placed orders for 7½ billion dollars worth of war goods; has actually delivered 3½ billion dollars worth; war production last year 2.6 billion dollars; forecast for this year 3.7 billions; over million workers in war industries, including 225,000 women; 25,000 women in armed services; supplies 200 pounds of food per person per year to United Kingdom; built all airways connecting Alaskan highway, has collected and marketed 300 million pounds of salvage.

In conclusion Mr. Marsh warned that the "war is not yet won; dark days lie ahead. Victory will come because we have good red blood in our veins, but it may be a matter of some years . . . how many depends upon you and me."

SICILY

Syracuse and 35 miles south of Catania, were undamaged.

Catania airport, next objective, was heavily bombarded from the sea early yesterday morning, and formations of Flying Fortresses paid another of their devastating visits yesteday, leaving their targets in flames.

Rush Reinforcements

The largest German troop concentrations yet thrown against the allied invaders of Sicily were reported to be massing across the path of British forces now threatening Catania in their northward drive against the key city of Messina.

Augusta, important port about 20 miles south of Catania, fell to Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth army yesterday. Additional sea-borne British troops, meanwhile, swarmed ashore near Catania as the main forces of the Eighth army pressed on northward against that second largest city on the island, which lies 55 miles south of Messina.

(The London radio quoted Italian sources as "admitting that allied ships are now in the roadsteads at Catania.")

(The Algiers radio in a broadcast recorded by Reuters said last night that British and Canadian forces already had contacted strong German elements—after the capture of Floridia, interior town eight miles west of Syracuse, and that "heavy fighting took place.")

It was stated officially that Canadians and British troops had met some resistance in their drive inland and up the east coast, but the statement added that "good progress is being made."

Meanwhile, Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's hard hitting American Seventh Army tenaciously extended its 60-mile front in southern Sicily reaching from Licata on the west to Ragusa on the east, and continued to pin back German and Italian forces which, by moving eastward, could threaten Montgomery's left flank.

The Americans have repulsed the heaviest repeated enemy counterattacks of the campaign, maintaining the vital left sector of the allied line intact against a series of thrusts by French-made tanks and other armored units.

Goering Divisions Bested

The crack Hermann Goering division, rushed from the interior to bolster Italy's fourth Livorne division in its attempts to block the American advance, was beaten off when it collided with the Americans for the first time Sunday, but the Germans were believed to be reforming for another slash.

Patton's forces yesterday swept 20 miles inland to meet British and Canadian forces at Ragusa and form a solid front throughout southeastern Sicily.

Altogether, the allies captured five additional towns yesterday to bring the invasion total to 15 and brought in more axis captives.

Allied naval forces maintained their stranglehold on the seas around Sicily which has been so effective that there have been no reports of attacks on American and British vessels by enemy surface craft in four days.

German and Italian planes continued their sporadic harassment of the allied armada of 3,000 warships and merchantmen.

Canadian forces which made their initial landings at Pachino on the southeastern tip of Sicily and pushed on 20 miles inland to join forces with the Americans at Ragusa, also captured Modica, 10 miles northwest of Ispica.

"Town after town is surrendering" to the Canadian forces, said Ross Munro, Canadian war correspondent accompanying them.

The lack of determined resistance is surprising even to the divisional staff," he said. "The infantry is advancing with incredible speed and it is practically impossible to keep in touch with their moves."

WAGE

such ranges must be the single rate, thus in a case where the single rate was 60 cents the range would be from 55 to 65 cents.

Criticism Answered

Replying to criticisms that common labor rates set for some cities were too low and that scales in most plants already were above WLB rates, thus precluding further raises except under the little steel formula, Gill said in a statement that the maximums had been set "deliberately" at a level 10 per cent below the average paid in an area.

This is in line, he asserted, with a national wage stabilization policy which says "you are not suffering from a gross inequity if your wages are within 10 per cent of the average being paid in your area for your particular type of job."

List of Maximums

Hourly maximums set include: Cleveland, Akron, Canton, Dayton, Kent-Ravenna, Steubenville-Warren and Youngstown—common labor (except service trades) 170; spot welders .80; truck drivers 87½; radial drill press operators 92½; maintenance carpenters .95; milling machine operators $1.00; turret lathe operators $1.05, millwrights, maintenance electricians and maintenace machinists $1.10; tool and die makers $1.25.

Columbus, Alliance, Ashland, Elyria, Fostoria, Hamilton, Ironton, Mansfield, Middletown, Newark, Sandusky and Sidney—common labor (except service trades) 165; spot welders 75 truck drivers .82½, radial drill press operators .87½; maintenance carpenters .90, milling machine operators 95 turret lathe operators $1.00, millwrights maintenance electricians and maintenance machinists $1.05, tool and die makers $1.20.

Springfield — Common labor (except service trades) 87½; other categories exactly midway between cities with 70-cent common labor rate and those with 65-cent rate.

Program Presented at Church Picnic

A picnic for members and friends of St. Paul's Evelyn Lutheran church, sponsored by the Ladies' aid society was held in the Sunday school room that evening instead of outdoors as planned. The dinner was followed by a program with Ben Varner, seminarian at Hamma Divinity school at Springfield, as chairman. Mrs. Ruth Thomas and Harry Petri received congratulations on their birthday anniversaries. In a Bible quiz between five men and five women the latter were winners. As a consequence the men were made up to impersonate women and Charles O'Dowd in a costume designed by Mrs. Hasl Miller, was named "Miss Dorcas of 1943." The National Anthem and other songs were sung by the group. Approximately 70 guests were present including Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Varner and Miss Helen Grenell of Columbus. The circle will meet in September with Mrs. Harold Carder of Windsor street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Nase of Fies avenue are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Ruth, to Sgt. Sidney Pezsner, son of Mrs. Fay Heilman of Bronx, New York, which took place July 8 at the parsonage of the Wesley Methodist church at 11 a. m. with Rev. D. N. Kelly officiating.

The bride chose a blue chiffon street length dress for her wedding costume. The couple's only attendant was the bridegroom's brother, George I. Nase, who acted as best man.

Sgt. Pezsner, a radio operator stationed at Camp Hood, Texas will leave Saturday to return to his camp. Mrs. Pezsner will live with her parents for the present time.

Announcement is being made of the marriage of Miss Dollie Boyles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Boyles of 133 North Grand avenue, and Francis Montgomery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Montgomery of near DeCliff, which took place Saturday afternoon, July 10. The double ring ceremony was read by Rev. W. H. Bright, pastor of the Methodist church at LaRue, in the parsonage at 4:30 o'clock.

For her wedding Miss Boyles chose a frock of shell pink sheer fashioned with a lace yoke and sleeves with white accessories, and wore a shoulder corsage of pink and white gardenias. Miss Marina Greenawalt of Marion was the bride's attendant and Glenn Dunkin of LaRue served as best man for the bridegroom.

The bride is employed as a bookkeeper at the Marion Paint Co. The couple will make their home on a farm near DeCliff.

Belgian Resistance Strong

Belgian resistance probably is stronger than that of any country in the world except Norway," Goris declared. About 10,000 civilians are now imprisoned for political activity and 1,000 others executed. Almost 150 newspapers are being published in Flemish and French to serve the underground, and everybody listens to Allied broadcasts.

"All we ask is to cooperate in any scheme which will not carve up our country after the war ends. The United States is the particular hope of Belgium; your country regards us not only idealistically without passion and wanting nothing from us."

Belgian Congo Still Free

He pointed out that the Belgian Congo is still free and fighting with the United Nations. It produces many strategic materials for war purposes, and its army of 130,000 is now in the Middle East, awaiting further action.

Goris came to the United States in April, 1940, to be commissioner of the Belgian pavilion at the World's fair the following summer. Just one month later his nation was invaded.

He remained in the United States to become information commissioner and to edit a weekly brochure which has a current free circulation of 130,000, and is printed in English, Spanish and Portuguese for distribution throughout the Americas.

Goris, returning east from a good will tour of the west coast, conferred at Colorado Springs with Joseph P. Constantine, Belgian consul.

Sponges Become Scarce Because Of War Demands

By International News Service

WASHINGTON — Sponges, best known for household uses, have been absorbed into the war program, according to Harold L. Ickes, coordinator of fisheries.

"Extreme scarcity of sponges for civilian needs is due to the fact that what sponges are available are being diverted largely to military use," Ickes declared.

"The present scarcity of sponges is due to several causes," Ickes pointed out. "The most important single cause is the scarcity of experienced fishermen.

Many Divers Join Navy

"The backbone of the Florida sponge industry is the fishery conducted by divers, who take high-grade sponges at depths up to 100 feet. The skill and experience of these divers are so useful to the Navy that the industry has lost large numbers of irreplaceable men."

Another sponge shortage cause, he continued, "is Coast Guard restrictions on the movement of vessels.

"Coast Guard regulations imposed in November, 1942, requiring vessels to return to port each night, seriously handicapped the sponge industry. Divers ordinarily remain at sea 30 days or more, and the necessity of running to and from the sponge grounds each day left little time for fishing."

Although these regulations were slightly relaxed on Jan. 30, the sponge boats still must come in for the night to Coast Guard anchorages nearest the grounds they are working.

Bahama Imports Decline

Finally, the Bahama Islands imports declined almost to the vanishing point after 1939, when a disease of unidentified origin destroyed most of the sponges there.

"Loss of these imports and wartime interference with shipments from such distant places as Australia have further reduced the quantities of sponges available in American markets," Ickes said.

"The shortage of sponges has just begun to be felt seriously," it was explained.

Serve Many Purposes

There are, however, several other types of sponges. The most popular ones used, besides the plant sponge referred to, are cellulose sponges and loofa sponges.

The loofa sponge is made from the white fibre surrounding the seeds of a Mexican vegetable which is a green gourd with a sponge like interior.

Sponges now are serving a variety of wartime purposes on all the fronts, proving equally valuable for surgical operations as well as the cleaning of many instruments and machines of war.

What Kind of Bait?

By The Associated Press

CHICKASHA, OKLA. — Lou Sellers had some exceptional luck while sauntering along the bank of the Washita river. He hadn't come to fish but spied a wire leading into a clump of bushes in the water. Suspecting a net, he heaved and hauled in. At the end of the line was a good-sized automobile tire in fair condition and mounted on a rim.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 14, 1943

July Morning in Sicily

HERE at home this was a pleasant July morning. It was a July morning in Sicily, too, but not so pleasant. On that strategic island more than half a million men were braced for one of the climactic battles of World war II.

All of them were away from home, even most of the Italians. The Americans and Canadians who had dropped on Sicily from airplanes, or been put ashore in invasion barges must have thought many times about the strangeness of their situation—fighting on a remote island most of them had heard about only as a name, if at all, before the last few weeks.

Back here at home on a pleasant July day, this is something to think about. Those men on Sicily and all the other men who shortly will be fighting for toeholds elsewhere on the land mass of Europe are in history's greatest battle of supply. They couldn't keep on fighting a week after their supplies quit coming. Their dependence on maximum effort back home is absolute.

They are willing and are proving themselves able to do their part in the war. There never was any doubt that they would. But there still is some doubt about the home front. Steel production still is being hurt by strikes in the coal mines of Pennsylvania. The battle of supply which the United States must win against the Germans and the Japanese still is being thrown out of gear by outbursts of temper and pettiness on the part of men who have forgotten they may be affecting the welfare of Americans looking into the face of death on Sicily, in New Guinea, in the sky over Germany—a hundred battlefronts throughout the world. If they remember, they would find some way to stay at work and settle their arguments some other way than striking. Perhaps the news from Sicily—the good news that must be kept good—will help all Americans to remember they must work harder now to back up their fighting men.

Rep. Engel on Tour

WHEN Michigan's Rep. Albert J. Engel goes on tour, he picks up live information for his congressional associates. He has discovered on a new 44-day junket that some incredibly high wages are being paid in war plants.

While this hardly can be called sensational information in Washington, it is likely that Rep. Engel's manner of presenting it will call attention to some previously neglected aspects of high wages. His comparison with military wages, which are low, is less important than the attention he has directed to the relationship between high wages and such vexing war problems as inflation and food shortages.

Ability of consumers with suddenly inflated incomes to pay more for food and to buy more food has been the root of the problem of rising prices and dwindling supplies. Despite increases in the cost of food, many consumers benefitting from high war wages are spending a smaller share of their income for food now than they were spending two years ago. The 18-year-old girl who recently had been a ribbon clerk and now is making $3,380 a year—one of Rep. Engel's prize exhibits—is in no mood to worry about the high cost of living. She is part of it. She likes it.

Perhaps that is, indirectly, Rep. Engel's great discovery on this trip. The people doing the serious worrying about inflation aren't the ones with lots of extra money to spend.

Battle of the Atlantic

THE victory being claimed in the battle of the Atlantic may be the most important war development of 1943—yet it can not be appreciated properly because no one can know for certain what happened.

As in the other war, when a combination of British and American sea power broke the force of the German blockade, the extent of the victory can not be determined until the end of the war and the release of confidential information, some of it now in possession of the Germans. Only they are in a position to know whether their submarine campaign has failed, and if it has they won't admit it.

But if it has failed, if the United Nations can send convoys across the Atlantic in virtual safety, Germany knows its defeat is certain. At the present rate of production and shipbuilding, the timetable of invasion might be revised completely. Everything could be advanced or carried out on a larger scale. It has been no secret that the submarine blockade hit hard where it hurt most. If German submarines have met "total defeat," as Prime Minister Churchill claims, a victory as important in its effect as that in North Africa has been gained—a triumph for Allied sea power rivaled only by America's accomplishment against Japan in the Pacific.

News Behind the News

Loss of Sicily to Allied Nations Will Spell Doom of Southern Half of Italy.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 14—The Germans fought for Italian Axis, but they let the Italians fight for Sicily.

The American-British-Canadian armies found, upon landing, that they were faced initially with only two German divisions and 10 Italian divisions. The Germans furnished whatever air force there was, but it was apparent at the outset that our Sicilian venture (unlike Tunisia) would hinge upon two Italian factors.

First was the Italian will to fight. Some of our authorities suspected we might encounter a stiffer resistance from Italians on their home soil than in Africa where they were more noted for their ability to run than to stand.

The only evidence on this at the outset, was the discovery that Mussolini had assigned 300,000 men to the defense of Sicily—more than the combined Axis strength in Tunisia at the end. (We took 236,000 prisoners). The number showed he had planned the strongest possible defense.

Second controlling factor was Mussolini's ability to reinforce his isolated Sicilian army. All railroad ferries from the tip of the Italian boot to Messina were sunk or damaged by our bombers before the invasion started. The docks at Messina on the Sicilian side were practically destroyed. Rail lines on the boot running back into Italy were damaged.

The only other way Mussolini could get warfare supplies in was by convoy from Naples. Our air forces practically patroled the skies over this route. As soon as we could capture a majority of the 8 to 20 airfields on Sicily, the route would become untenantable. This supplies factor therefore suggested our conquest could be swift.

The Italians might retreat into the mountains of central Sicily and hold out, but they could be supplied there only by air. Their ability to hang on in guerrilla warfare indefinitely in this way is therefore doubtful.

Nor is it plausible that the Germans and Italians can retire to an impregnable main defense line back on the mainland of Italy, south of Rome, where the mountainous terrain is suitable. Once in control of the airfields of Sicily, we will have air range over all Italy and can send fighter planes along with the bombers up as far as Rome.

The loss of Sicily therefore means the doom of all the south half of Italy.

This is not the second front. No authority here calls it that. Plans for this invasion were made months ago. They are merely supplemental to the main blow from us which is yet to come.

Strength of the German central front attack in Russia (July 5) caused a general popular suspicion that it was the promised summer offensive. A week later, however, events had not yet made clear whether it was or not.

True, large numbers of tanks and troops were used by the Nazis in the first seven days, but on nowhere near as great a scale as in the summer offensives the past two years. The Russian communiques naturally emphasized the ferocity of the engagement, but the German communiques gave no hint of its objective, even to its most practiced military eye.

From the start, authorities here were convinced the primary Nazi objective was limited to the city of Kursk. A great defensive Nazi advantage would be gained if the line could be thus straightened out to that extent. Far fewer soldiers would be required to defend it.

On the other hand, around Voronezh last year, the Nazis were locked for a week or two in somewhat the same kind of limited battle before they broke through for Stalingrad. From the start it was possible a break-through might permit the Nazis to proceed with their expected plan to encircle Moscow.

Yet the concentrations observed up to a few days ago on that front, belied such expectations. Indeed, Hitler's removal of planes and reserves from the Russian front just before the attack was launched, indicated the opposite conclusion.

The action, therefore, was most authoritatively interpreted in its initial stages as a defensive Nazi offensive to throw off-balance a promised Russian attack. Stalin had concentrated his greatest strength on that front, as had the Germans.

Obviously, Stalin intended to attack the moment we launched the second front. A hard limited German offensive would be the best defense under these circumstances.

The lines in this column (published July 6) telling how Hitler had been moving planes away from his promised attack, appeared in the same editions as Moscow announcements of the Kursk offensive, thereby leading some readers to believe my advice conflicted with the Moscow announcements. Time only can tell.

BACK INTO OUR OLD "RUT" AGAIN

Fewer War Casualties

Death Rate Lower Than 1917-18 Average.

FATAL casualties of 15,132 from battle were reported by the Army and Navy on June 24. Other totals were: 21,860 wounded and 33,679 missing.

In the Army total of 22,687 missing, 16,000 Philippine Scouts and 6,000 other soldiers from the Philippines are included. It is believed most of these are prisoners, so that perhaps as few as one third of the Army missing must be considered dead. In the total of 11,010 Navy missing, however, 75 per cent must be considered dead. In military usage, the term "missing" includes all persons who are not definitely accounted for, either as fatal casualties or prisoners.

As against only 200 days of actual hostilities in 1917-18, the United States has so far seen 560 days of hostilities. The battle death rate works out to about 55 a day, including the probable fatal casualties among the missing. In World war I, the rate was 275 a day.

Heavier American losses when United States land forces close with Axis land armies is a certainty. The number of soldiers in combat in North Africa probably has been less than one-tenth of the number engaged in actual fighting in the Meuse-Argonne battle of 1918, when 1,200,000 United States troops were under fire according to war department calculations.

Casualties have been minimized, also, by the generally high level of health in the armed forces. The influenza epidemic in 1918 took almost as many lives of soldiers as were lost in combat. In the Army, deaths from all diseases totaled 57,500; from battle 50,000; from other causes, including accidents, 8,000—a grand total of 115,500. In the Navy, deaths totaled 10,000—a grand total of 115,500 deaths in the armed forces in 1917-18.

In estimating military casualty rates, consideration must be given the normal rate for civilians. Latest figures indicate a death rate of about 3,500 for a million men between the ages of 20 and 35.

Government Payroll

From Washington Review.

THE enormous expansion of government payrolls is being questioned increasingly as citizens come into contact with bureaucratic control methods and feel the impact of heavy taxes and higher costs of living.

The pace of expansion of payrolls has been entirely unprecedented. The total of 940,000 in September, 1939, was a little highet than the peak of civilian employment during the first World war. Since 1939 the total has mounted by 50 per cent each six months. The scale of salaries paid in war agencies has been so liberal that the amount of the payroll increased more rapidly than the number of workers.

The number of employes in the major war departments and agencies has reached such huge totals as to dwarf completely anything heretofore known. The civilian employes of the war department increased from 110,000 in July, 1939, to 1,300,000 in 1943, and of the navy department from 85,000 to 580,000. Between July, 1942, and April, 1943, employes of the office of price administration increased from 23,000 to 52,000; the office of defense transportations, from 718 to 3,760; the war manpower commission, from 528 to 3,760; the office of war information, from 2,400 to 3,700, and the war labor board, from 138 to 1,640.

Modernized Jungle

BUTTE, MONT. — Not quite all of the comforts of home but at least some of its conveniences have been manufactured of the strange native materials American jungle fighters have found available at stations far out in the Pacific, says Capt. From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Friday, July 14, 1933.

Three bandits who had broken into the Citizens' bank at Cardington overpowered E. M. Willits, cashier, when he reported for work and escaped with $7,500 after forcing him to open the vault. This was one of the first jobs reported in the notorious career of John Dillinger, Indiana gangman, who was later shot to death in Chicago, and was the only robbery in the immediate Marion area atributed to the Dillinger gang. In making their getaway from the scene of the Cardington robbery, the bandits scattered large roofing nails along the highway. This was known to be one of Dillinger's favorite methods of slowing up pursuers.

A campaign to unionize every craft and trade in Marion was launched here with an address by H. J. Brown of Cleveland, first vice president of the International Association of Machinists. His talk was heard by 300 workers in the Central Labor Union hall.

Marion county farmers as well as farm operators in other parts of Ohio united in an offensive to stop the spread in Ohio corn fields of the devastating chinch bug.

Freddie Vestal, star right-hander of the Serv-U-Wel softball team, hurled no-hit ball as his team defeated the Huber Manufacturing Co. team by a score of 4 to 0 in an Industrial league game.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Saturday, July 24, 1923.

Evidence that Marion county was regarded as one of the most up-to-date farm communities of the state was seen in the announcement that H. C. Ramsower, director of agricultural extension service at Ohio State university, had selected the county as the starting place of a week's tour of inspection of Ohio farms by R. S. Duncan, director of the agricultural representative branch of Toronto, Canada, and a group of other Canadian farm agents.

M. E. Milligan, a state prohibition inspector who had been on duty here since April 10, was called to another post of duty on official orders from B. F. McDonald, state prohibition commissioner.

Mrs. Edna E. Fetter and James A. Sauer, both of Marion, were united in marriage by Dr. J. D. Darling at the Wesley M. E. parsonage.

Miss Florence Dills of Caledonia and Robert Chrisman of Dayton were united in marriage at the M. E. parsonage at Caledonia by Rev. F. W. Haas.

The Marion Steam Shovel team of the Industrial baseball league defeated the Osgood team in a 12-inning game, 9 to 8. The Studebaker-Wulff team won over the Silk Mills, 8 to 3.

Post-War Food Battle

Expected To Continue Two Years or More.

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

WASHINGTON, July 14—You can look for the battle of food to continue, not only for the duration, but probably for two years or more after the United Nations are victorious in Europe.

Europe's need of food will be much greater after military operations are ended on the continent than it is now. All of the countries, with the possible exception of Sweden, Switzerland, Portugal and Germany, will have experienced several years of serious undernourishment or near-starvation.

Larger Consumption

The relief burden will have to be carried mainly by the big five producers of wheat, meat and dairy products—the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and Argentina. How much of that burden can and shall be shouldered by Uncle Sam promises to be a primary headache problem for the post-war administration and congress, be they Democratic or Republican.

Rationing of most foods in this country so far has been the result largely of increased consumption by civilians, millions of whom have been receiving larger income and buying more and better food during the war-production boom. Government food authorities say that the shortage of meat, aside from marketing difficulties, has been almost wholly a reflection of this increased civilian buying. Military consumption was a smaller factor.

For example, practically no beef has been sent out under lend-lease. In 1942, lend-lease food shipments of all kinds represented only 6½ per cent of our total food supply while food production has been increased much more than that. Only within the last two or three months has the tonnage of lend-lease foods reached a larger figure than it was before Pearl Harbor.

Larger Shipments Due

Food officials say that our food shipments abroad now are a drop in the bucket compared with what relief demands will be when armistice day comes. According to Under-Secretary of Agriculture Paul Appleby, chief U. S. delegate to the recent international food conference, "it simply would not be possible to take out of consumption in this country sufficient food to give Europeans only two-thirds of a normal diet."

"The only food we can send to Europe will be food we ourselves haven't eaten," Appleby says. "We should be rationing ourselves now to build as large stocks as possible for that need. We should continue rationing for some time after the war is over for that need."

It will take time for the hungry countries to reestablish their agriculture or to rehabilitate their industries in order to pay in goods for the food they receive. That means U. S. citizens may have to foot the relief food bill in the form of high food prices or eventual taxation to finance subsidies, or perhaps both.

The post-war congress will have a lot to say about the business of food relief. Voters already chafing at food restrictions, food prices and heavy taxes will be eager to return to "normalcy" as soon as possible. And it's a good bet that rationing will be more unpopular than ever.

Presidential Dream

By DAMON RUNYON

Few Men Can Resist Proposal for Chance To Become Tenant of White House in Washington.

IT LOOKS as if Gen. MacArthur will have to pull a Gen. Sherman on his admirers if his sincere in his previous answers to proposals his candidacy for the Republican nomination president. The latest move in that direction organization of a MacArthur-For-President in Chicago.

Gen. MacArthur has said several times he not interested in politics and has apparently tried to discourage the use of his name in connection with the nomination. But the hint stops dropping up as insistently as it did in the case of Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman, one of the north's great military chieftains in the Civil war.

One day Sherman said:

"If nominated I will not run, if elected I will not serve."

That is the most final statement ever made by a man to the suggestion that he be a candidate for the presidency, because on that particular proposition most men are mighty coy. We have had some singularly vague and equivocal statements on it from distinguished and normally forthright and honest citizens in the past, including Calvin Coolidge's famous, "I do not choose to run."

That suggestion has caused many men to make downright liars of themselves. They have publicly declared they were not candidates only to come out later and run till their tongues hung out. I concede the right of any man to change his mind, but in most cases at the time the men said they were not candidates, they knew they were, so that made them liars.

I DOUBT that many men ever lived who, once they were prompted to the idea of seeking the presidency, were not thereafter candidates to their graves, at least in their own minds. I have often wondered who gave some men the notion they could or should be president when their own common sense should have told them they were totally unfit and improbable. I have come to the conclusoin that it must have been secret enemies who knew the poison of the suggestion. It has ruined many a man's life.

Still, I have more admiration even for the misfits who want to be president and are not afraid to come right out and say so than I have for the coy ones who give evasive answers to questions as to their intentions, especially those who are known to the very newsboys on the streets as hopeful of the lightning striking them. Sherman's statement is my idea of a statement.

Tom Dewey has been almost as final in disavowing his candidacy. He is under contract to the voters of the state of New York to serve four years as governor, and he says he will make good his end of the deal. But I have been hearing Republicans say that their national convention may "draft" Dewey as its presidential candidate. In my opinion a "draft" of Dewey would be as counterfeit as the great Democratic "draft" in Chicago and for the same reason.

DEWEY will almost surely control the Republican convention. He will have the great New York delegation, most of the other eastern and probably all of the southern delegations. If he wants the nomination he can have it without any backing and filling, so obviously a "draft" of him would be spurious. In effect, he would be "drafting" himself. If he went into the convention on his last statement and then accepted the nomiation by "draft," he would convict himself as a political double-talker.

Of course I can understand why Gen. MacArthur would have to be mighty cautious in his statements if he actually has presidential aspirations. He must reckon with the ethics of the military and with the hazard of getting a political pushing around if his ambition should assume the aspect of distinct possibility. Personally, I am inclined to think that the general prefers his assured proud eminence of our first soldier to the chancy business of running the civilian political gauntlet, seeking the place of first citizen.

But you never can tell what goes on in a man's mind once he has heard the suggestion that he might become president. MacArthur is ambitious. He is enormously spectacular. He likes the limelight. And he would not be the first of our great soldiers to be tempted by the prospect of the highest civilian honor if he should "choose to run."

New Shrine

Announcement by Harold L. Ickes as secretary of the interior that St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal church in Mt. Vernon, N. Y., has been designated a national historic site marks the creation of a new national shrine of freedom.

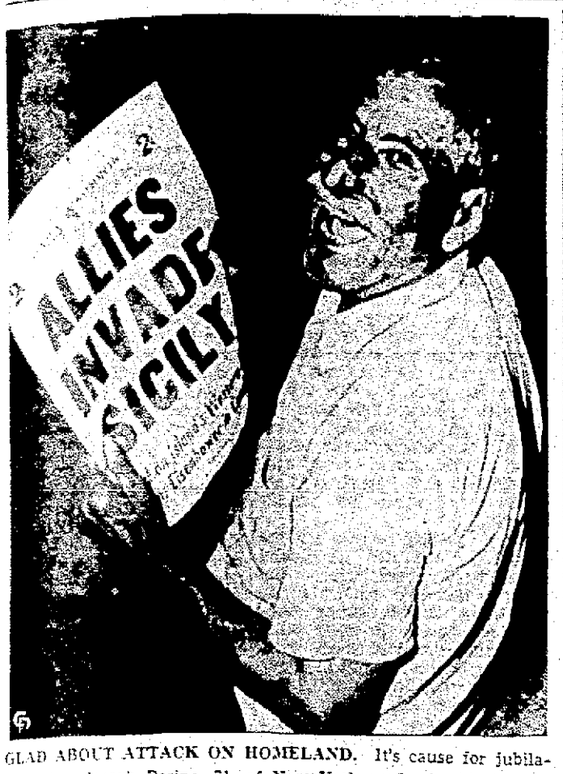

In 1733, the royal government of New York, William Cosby, denied the ballot to a group of Quakers who refused to qualify as voters in an election on the village green facing the west entrance to the church.

John Peter Zenger, printer of the New York Weekly Journal, printed the truth about the episode and was arrested on a charge of seditious libel against the crown of England. When a grand jury refused to indict him, he was tried on information, but acquitted. His acquittal has come to be regarded as the cornerstone of freedom of press in the United States.

The late Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, mother of the President, became interested more than a decade ago in restoring the church to its original condition. This work was completed in 1940, and the building was re-dedicated as a shrine of freedom of the press and of the Bill of Rights. A plaque honoring Mrs. Roosevelt was unveiled in the church last December.

As an historic site, the church will be subject to government interest in its preservation and management.

GLAD ABOUT ATTACK ON HOMELAND. It's cause for jubilation when Joseph Perino, 71, of New York reads the black headlines to announce the invasion of his homeland, Sicily, by Allied forces. To Perino, it means his fellow countrymen will be freed from the yoke of Mussolini and Hitler.

Heavy Opposition Ahead for Allies Unless Axis Quits

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The Sicilian invasion entered its fifth day with good fortune still pacing the hard driving allies, but it seemed certain that concerted opposition was impending unless the axis did the unbelievable thing of quitting cold.

The first counterattack of any weight was that hurled by the Germans at our American forces under General Patton on the west wing yesterday. There is some passing speculation whether this assault was directed at the Yankees purely because of tactical necessity, or whether the embittered Hitlerites had in mind discrediting United States efforts for propaganda purposes. Be that as may, we took the attack in stride and smashed it.

Events are milling about so swiftly that he who makes forecasts is bullying his luck, but it looks now as though the broad plain of Catania one of the battlegrounds of the ages—may continue its old role and become the scene of the decisive engagements in the fight for Sicily.

Close To Etna

This fertile granary, which crowds with daring insolence against the volcanic foothills of grumbling Etna, about halfway along the eastern coast of the island, lies athwart the route which the allied forces on the east wing are pursuing northwards toward the strategic port of Messina. The axis well may make its first big show of resistance here. The Catanian plain affords the best field for the operation of mechanized forces in this generally mountainous island, and tank divisions presumably will be used in strength by both allies and axis.

The port of Catania on the edge of the plain is Sicily's second largest city, with a population of a quarter million. In its some 2,700 years of adventure it had been the center of many wars. It has been destroyed, and has risen again from its own ruins, so often that it's hard to keep the count—not to mention the assaults from erupting Etna and earthquakes.

Despite its varied experience of hard knocks, however, Catania probably never was hit harder than it will be if it tries to resist the march of General Montgomery with his famous British Eighth army and hard-boiled Canadians. Perhaps the already bomb-battered city will remain passive while the decision is sought on the neighboring plain.

Catania is 59 miles by rail south of Messina, the all-important port which is the island's rail head for the mainland's railroads. Trains are ferried across the narrow strait of Messina, thus maintaining a vital communication.

Messina Capture Urgent

Isolation of Sicily from the Italian peninsula demands that Messina be captured at the earliest possible moment. This will leave the axis forces on the island cut off from supplies and reinforcements, save for the few which might be moved by air.

Allied progress northward should be helped vastly by yesterday's capture of the great seaport of Augusta which lies between Syracuse and Catania. Augusta's harbor is one of the best in the Mediterranean and is a godsend to the allies, who have needed more deep-water harborage for the unloading of the expeditionary forces and equipment from the vast armada of expeditionary ships.

Another important development is the capture of Floridia, Palazzolo and Ragusa. These places lie across the tip of the southeastern peninsula astride which the allied forces are forging forward. The significance of these captures is that they are communications centers. Ragusa is a strategic point for both railway and highways. If you will look at your maps you will see what this involves.

It means that the American and other allied troops on the west arm of the peninsula, and Montgomery's forces on the eastern coast, are in process of establishing communications across the tip of the peninsula for fast movement of men, equipment and supplies. This brilliant stroke also divides enemy contingents in that area.

Air power continues to play its major part magnificently. Axis communications are being neutralized and the defending airfleet is being smothered.

The Sierra Nevada range is the greatest in the United States, measuring 430 miles long by 40 to 50 in breadth.

San Francisco has nearly 300 churches, representing more than 50 denominations.

Fisher Orders Release of Seized Whisky

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 14—State Liquor Director Don Fisher today authorized release of 4,062 cases of out-of-state whisky impounded in a liquor department warehouse to 93 Franklin county permitholders who entered a pool to acquire the liquor through the purchase of whisky warehouse receipts.

The department "froze" the merchandise after its arrival at a Columbus warehouse more than a month ago because, Fisher said, pool participants were assessed $55 per case although the liquor actually cost their two purchasing agents from $20.90 to $21.75 per case.

The director also reported the two Columbus men who represented the retailers must yet pay the state its $1 gallonage fee; a 30 per cent mark-up on each case and incidental costs for handling the liquor.

From Sales To Soil

DOWN ON THE FARM! Mr. Jamison and his two sons, David Clyde and Lee, have mastered the tractor.

Associated Press Features

CENTER POINT, Ia.—Eight years ago, the L. F. Jamisons decided they were tired of city life, and moved to the farm. It's taken most of those eight years for them to find out that farming isn't the cinch they thought it would be.

Although they started out to do something they didn't know anything about, they've ended up today with a blue ribbon. For the AAA recently presented the former city slickers with the first United States war service certificate, marking them as "soldiers of the soil."

Salesman 4 Years

For four years Jamison, now 54, was a salesman who said goodbye to his family every Monday and didn't say hello again until Friday night. Saturdays were spent at sales meetings, and on Sundays the house had to be kept quiet so he could write his reports and plan another week's work.

Why the five Jamisons turned to farming, they still don't know—except that they thought anyone could operate a farm without half trying. But they did know they weren't getting enough happiness out of the city routine.

Enter Trouble

When they bought their 80 acre farm, trouble really began.

They nervously watched a real farmer harness their first team and hoped they could remember how to buckle it on again.

They worked the mares, blissfully ignorant that each carried a colt.

It was agony before they learned to milk with their arms instead of just with their hands. It was so quiet on the farm (they lived in nearby Cedar Rapids—population 62,000—before) they had trouble sleeping.

They Learned

They lost their rubbers scores of times before they learned overshoes are correct barnyard footwear. They covered a lot of new corn before they discovered the functions of cultivator guards.

Neighbors quietly joked about "the amateurs," predicted they wouldn't last, but loaned a hand to steer the Jamisons away from possible disaster with crops and livestock.

But the folks from the city stuck it out—and made good. Today they wouldn't price their land at $200 an acre because it would be snapped up at once.

Thrills in the Country

The well-improved layout includes a team of horses, 12 registered Poland China sows, 81 spring pigs, 200 Leghorn hens currently producing 145 eggs a day, 28 pedigreed Shropshire sheep, 23 head of cattle, including nine milk cows, a tractor and a good set of machinery.

The Jamisons have had a lot of thrills in their adventure in the country, but a few will always stand out.

There was the night Jamison was elected president of the community club. A little thing, yes, but it meant that the family had won—had been accepted into the farming fraternity.

With what they hope were their hardest years behind them, the Jamisons have signed papers for adoption of a girl they never have seen. Her name will be Phoebe. Their oldest son also is adopted.

Yes, the Jamisons believe they have come a long way since that day when the whole family inspected the first field of new corn and Mrs. Jamison remarked:

"It looks exactly like a black comforter tied with green wool."

Coincidence

By The Associated Press

BUTTE, Mont.—Mrs. Helen Spangler, member of the WAACs in Iowa, and her husband, John, a soldier in Texas, were promoted to staff sergeants on the same day. Mrs. Spangler and her husband wrote to Butte relatives about their promotions, although neither knew that the other had been raised in rank.

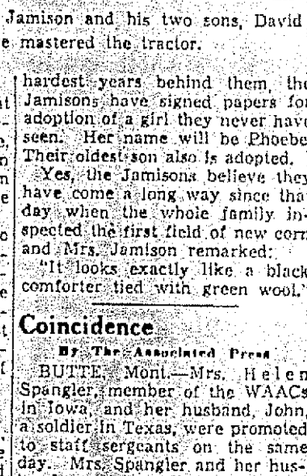

Do You Know

If the 1942 rate of shoe buying in this country had been continued in 1943, sales would have exceeded shoe production by at least 100 million pairs.

An entire mechanized division in motion uses about 18,000 gallons of gasoline every hour, or 4,000 gallons more than the hourly gasoline ration demand of Washington, D. C.

Every day that the 12th Air Force fought in the last phase of the Tunisian campaign, General Doolittle's air fighters needed as much aviation gasoline as would fill two railroad tank trains of 60 cars each.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

FOR STORE CLOSING

Editor of The Star: I am writing in protest to the letter in Tuesday's paper by Joseph Reynolds where he complains of inconvenience of not being able to go shopping on Wednesday afternoons.

Where does he get the idea of inconvenience, anyhow? It seems to me that there are five more days in the week that he can go shopping. It does not have to be on Wednesday. And did he ever stop to think of the long hours a store clerk puts in? And does he think a store has any more sunshine or fresh air than a factory? In a store they put in between nine and ten hours a day—the same as any shop man—on Friday and Saturday they put in almost 12 hours. When their closing time comes they have to pitch in and clean the place up and put things away for the next day—they can't pack up and leave at quitting time like you shop men do.

Besides, help is hard to get in a store because everyone goes to a factory to work because there is more money in it. That in turn makes more work for the remaining clerks at the store and they don't get paid time and a half for overtime work as you fellows do. Yet they stick to their job because it too, is essential to the war effort. So why begrudge these people a half day off?

When my husband does have a half day off—he doesn't take it easy as you seem to think—but goes out and helps some farmer as long as the weather is permissible. I know that there are many other store workers who are doing the same—if not that, then they work in their victory gardens which is also aiding the war effort. So, Mr. Reynolds, do your shopping on one of the other five days in the week.

When you print this letter, I'm sure you'll find I am expressing the opinion of most of the store workers that read Mr. Reynolds' letter.

All out for the war effort, too

MRS. M. M. SCHNITTKE.

Wives of Officers Volunteer To Help Cut Kansas Wheat

By The Associated Press

PRETTY PRAIRIE, Kan.—Two Kansas farmers started harvesting 720 acres of wheat with three hired hands — one experienced man, a former university beauty queen and a New York girl seeing the west for the first time.

Today the grain is ready for shipment to a hungry world and the feminine hands, Mrs. Venore Voran of Pretty Prairie and Mrs. Dottie Watson of Downsville, Ky., are sunburned but proud.

They're war wives, with husbands in North Africa, and they volunteered to help relieve the farm labor shortage. Mrs. Voran, a beauty queen at the University of Kansas not long ago, is the wife of Lieut. Bruce Voran, Pretty Prairie banker.

She met Mrs. Watson at Fort Knox, Ky., where their husbands were earning their commissions. They became warm friends and when Lieutenants Voran and Vail Watson sailed for North Africa, Mrs. Watson promised to visit Kansas.

The harvest idea struck them after the New York girl's arrival and Homer and L. R. French agreed to put them to work.

Barefooted and barebacked, Mrs. Watson drove the tractor. Mrs. Voran, sleeves and pants legs of overalls rolled, wielded a shovel, loading wheat from a combine and hauling it to market. The hot Kansas sun baked the ground, but the girls were on the job 12 hours a day.

"I didn't think the girls would last long," admitted L. R. French. "I fully expected them to play out in a day or two at the most."

A year ago Kansas City elevators were so crammed wheat was moving only under permit. Today storage facilities are in a much improved position with approximately 30 million bushels of space available for new grain—if railroads can haul it.

Police reported that when they arrested him, his dog was so badly maimed from the thrashings that it had to be killed by city patrolmen.

Yanks Sit Out As AL All-Stars Win

McCarthy's Bombers Not Needed To Take 5 to 3 Decision.

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA, July 14 — The American league lineup has proved it doesn't need the Yankees—as long as it can do the home-run tricks in a bat.

This, naturally, is the home-run or a reasonable facsimile thereof—a Yankee specialty from 'way back in baseball. And, while Manager Joe McCarthy didn't use a single member of his bomber brigade in knocking off the National leaguers 5 to 3 last night in the 11th edition of the all-star slugging party, the way it happened made you look quick to be sure it wasn't a Yankee putting on the crusher.

But this time it was Robert Pershing Doerr, the Los Angeles "Lulu" who has been playing a lot of infield for the Boston Red Sox, but has more or less been the second-base shadow cast by the Yanks' Joe Gordon for several seasons. Joe the flash was just the "American league bench jockey" last night, and the Nationals went out in front with a run in the first inning and were just bouncing along behind Mort Cooper.

Then, in the second, before you or the 31,938 cash customers knew what was cooking, Mort's fireball lost its control for a couple of innings and he walked Chet Laabs, the St. Louis Brownies' nimble fly-chaser, and Jake Early, Washington's work horse catcher.

Then up stepped Robert Pershing and aimed one at the left field stands, and it just barely gasped its way into the lower seats. A yard shorter, and it would have been only a fly out.

That was your ball game, and the Americans simply ambled to their eighth win in the 11 All-Star games.

In the third chapter, a pair of pounding doubles produced another run. And if that didn't settle the issue, the only guy among the 20 National leagues in the game who looked as if he would just as soon have a bat as a tommy-gun in a tight spot was Vince DiMaggio of Pittsburgh. He got into the game in the third inning and poked a single into left. In the seventh, he tripled and came home on Dixie Walker's pinch fly. And in the ninth, he hit the hardest ball of the night, well into the upper stands in left field.

There were five Yankees on the bench—and they stayed there, because, as Manager McCarthy put it, "we got out in front quick, and we didn't need 'em."

Johnny Vander Meer, the old double-no-hit kid of the Cincinnati Reds, was called on to take over for Cooper in the third with one run in, one on and one out, and he fanned Rudy York and Laabs to end that inning. From there, he fanned four more in the next two frames and wound up with a total of 11 strikeouts for his two All-Star elbowing appearances, thereby equalling Carl Hubbell's record.

It was a convincing American league victory, even to the older members of the National league cheering and chowder society.

When you come right down to it, Manager Billy the Kid Southworth had the right answer.

"We just didn't get those long ones—and we didn't get 'em in bunches," he said.

OWNER OF RANDALL WINNER STRICKEN

Charles H. Wilkinson Dies Suddenly at Cleveland.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 14—Three stake races, one the $3,762 national for two-year-old trotters, make up today's grand circuit program at North Randall track, with a $500 event for 2:19 pacers tossed in for good measure.

A tragic note entered grand circuit activities last night when Charles H. Wilkinson, 61-year-old Logansport, Ind., manufacturer and sportsman, died of a heart attack while dining in the Acacia country club.

Wilkinson's death occurred a few hours after Attorney, from his Wilco Farms stables, had dashed to a straight heat triumph in the feature Geers pacing stake, a $5,000 race.

The Indiana industrialist was a native of Ohio, and president of the Logansport, Ind., Machine Co. This was his first season as a grand circuit competitor, and shortly before the opening of the current meeting he paid $15,000 for Austin Hanover, a Hambletonian candidate.

Attorney won the feature stake yesterday by besting the favored Good Bye and six other pacers, fashioning mile heats in 2:05 and 2:06½.

Sep Palin drove to a triumph in the $1,000 Peninsula farm stake for trotters behind Worthy Boy, traveling mile heats in 2:05¼ and 2:06¾. Hava Hanover placed in the first whirl and Juarez was second in the finale.

Snatches of Sports

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

PHILADELPHIA, July 14 — "When you have two men on and some one hits a home run, the damage is done," remarked Billy Southworth, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals and the National league All-Stars ... And that just about sums up last night's game in which the National leaguers took their customary shellacking from the American leaguers".... Things looked quite rosy for the senior circuit until Mort Cooper walked a couple of guys in the second and along came Bobby (the swinging) Doerr and boom!....Then the ball game was practically over. .. But just to show you what optimists these baseball players are, the losers came into the dressing room talking about how hard Bill Herman hit a liner in the ninth and what might have happened if it had been a few feet higher.

* * *

Quote. Unquote — More from Southworth: "This isn't like a World Series. Seems like we ought to have a few more games. I'm just getting warmed up."....And, discussing his decision to yank Mort Cooper off the hill before his three-inning stint. "I'm glad it was one of my own men. I felt more free to take him out."....Joe McCarthy, who wasn't especially jubilant about getting square with Southworth for what happened last fall in the World Series: "Don't bother me. I've got to dress and catch a train."

* * *

Shibe Park Shivaree — Before last night's game some one automatically asked "Who's pitching for the Yankees?" ... But there wasn't a Yankee in the ball game for the first time in All-Star history....Maybe the Yanks weren't needed this year—or maybe their absence reflects the closeness of the American league race....Remember a few years ago when the National league was having a tight one there was quite a fuss about whether pitchers should be saved for the big game or saved for the tilts that really count.

* * *

Cleaning the Cuff — The ball players don't get any pay for the All-Star games, but they get into the park free and get two extra tickets thrown in. For the first time nonworkers were admitted to the press box . . There weren't enough scribes to fill the 300-odd seats the rest were sold to bring in a few more bucks for the baseball equipment fund.

LOSS OF ARM FAILS TO STOP CHICAGOAN

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 14 — A boyhood accident which cost Billy Bartz the loss of his left arm failed to keep him off the sports field—and in a starring role.

Billy was 11 when he suffered the loss of his arm—a giant firecracker he had picked up exploding in his hand. Billy was interested in all sports and baseball was his favorite game. Some day, he often had hoped, he might become a big league pitcher.

But baseball, with his handicap, was sidetracked for softball and Billy was good enough to play on boys' teams in suburban Forest Park, his home. He was a pitcher and the kids who batted against him soon realized he was just about the best softball boy hurler in the community.

In a few years, Bartz' reputation as a softball pitcher brought him offers to pitch in faster competition and he hurled for some of the top aggregations in Chicago. In 1940 he joined the Matches when that team was organized and in the following year he hurled the club to the Chicago Metropolitan championship in the 1941 softball tourney at Detroit the team reached the qualifying spot, due largely to young Bartz's pitching.

He's recognized as one of the best softball pitchers in the Metropolitan area—where there are scores of top-ranking moundsmen — and his record shows the impressive total of 265 victories against 41 defeats. He's still pitching for the Matches and among the teams he has defeated this season were the South Bend 1941 World champions, on two occasions.

Bartz, who is employed as a production manager, is 27.

COCA-COLA DEFEATS STEELERS IN SHORT CONTEST, 12 TO 0

Huber and Cooler Tied 0-0 When Game Is Called at End of Fourth.

Coca-Cola walloped Commercial Steel's Industrial league entry 12 to 0 at Lincoln park last night in an abbreviated four-inning game which closed the curtain on Industrial-Commercial loop play for the second half of the 1943 season.

At Garfield park Huber and Universal Cooler, respectively the first and second place Industrial circuit teams put on a great battle of softball strategy which developed into a pitching battle between the leagues two leading hurlers Harold M[illegible] of Huber and Bill Early of Cooler. However, the game was called at the end of four innings because of rain with the score knotted at 0 to 0.

The Coca-Cola triumph was deemed official by the softball committee since the game was called at the end of the top half of the fifth, when just the required minimum amount of innings had been played for a regulation tilt. Rain began to plummet down in torrents at that point, and before Commercial took the field for the last of the fifth, the ump rightly called it quits for the evening.

The Cokes capitalized on seven walks issued by Commercial pitcher Millington, a Steeler error, and eight hits of their own to win the game by a more than decisive count. The last half of the third proved to be the top Coca-Cola stanza as four runs on only two hits were made by the beverage squad. However, three of Millington's free tickets were presented to Coke in that frame.

Topy Caprino, second line flinger for Coca-Cola (Coxie Weiss is the Coke meal ticket) pitched his best game of the season as he set Commercial down with only one hit. This bingle did not come until two were out in the first of the fifth inning when Crissinger, Commercial second baseman, hit a single.

Weber, Coca-Cola short center fielder, was the only ball player on the field who could get to the enemy pitcher for more than one hit. He racked up two for three.

Only one hit was allowed by both pitchers in the Huber-Universal Cooler contest for the four innings. This bingle was made by a Huber batter who cracked out a triple but who could not get the necessary boost to tally a run.

The Thresher-Cooler game will be replayed at some future open date in the Industrial league schedule. It may promise to be one of the season's hottest clashes as Huber wants to tighten its hold on first place in the league and the Cooler team wishes to win a share of first place.

Marion golfers will go all out for a worthy cause, the American Red Cross Sunday morning when the first of two [illegible] team matches between Mar-O-Del and the Marion Country club [illegible] at the Country club course [illegible].

Between 24 and 32 linksmen from each course are expected to play in the tourney. Each of these golfers will be required to pay an entry fee which will be contributed to the Red Cross fund. These fees will probably represent the [illegible] of money to be donated to the Red Cross [illegible] originally scheduled for the charity event will not be held as the match is to get under way at 8:30 Sunday morning.

Such golfing events for the benefit of the Red Cross and other worthy organizations are being [illegible] by the United States Golf Association. Lewis, president of the Marion Country club says that both Mar-O-Del and the Country club will receive certificates of recognition from the USTGA for their [illegible] in furthering the cause of the Red Cross.

Return Match Set

Regardless of the outcome of Sunday's match, a return event will be played at the Mar-O-Del nine-hole public links in the near future. Certificates will be awarded to each course [illegible] second benefit match also.

The Country club [illegible] planned a tournament for the benefit of the Red Cross [illegible] but inclement weather [illegible] and other unavoidable circumstances necessitated [illegible] of that charity [illegible].

Inter-club matches [illegible] Mar-O-Del and Country [illegible] have been held for several [illegible] and usually have proved [illegible] hard fought affairs. [illegible] should the event [illegible] one. Reasons for [illegible] and sundry. Here [illegible] of them:

1. Bill Summerell, Country [illegible] professional for three years [illegible] ceding this one, has withdrawn from his pro status and [illegible] playing as an amateur for [illegible] employer club. He [illegible] expected to furnish the [illegible] of competition for [illegible] Mar-O-Del swingers.

2. John Rife, three-time [illegible] county champ, will be [illegible] firing line for Mar-O-Del [illegible] annual home course, for [illegible] the last time for the [illegible] Sunday. He is scheduled [illegible] the Navy's Seabees, the construction corps of the fleet [illegible] week. The left hander's [illegible] will be sorely missed after [illegible] day but his fellow members [illegible] certain that he will make [illegible] competitive appearance in [illegible] for the duration one of [illegible] sterling.

The individual matches Sunday will go the 18-hole route. Results of each match will be decided on a three-fold basis, one point for the first nine holes, one point for the second nine, and a third point for the entire 18.

Tribe and Brewers Stick to Tie in AA

By The Associated Press

Indianapolis and Milwaukee are engaged in such a redhot fight in the American association race that not only are they still tied for first place but they also are going in for identical big single-inning splurges to pull down those victories.

Milwaukee's was a bit more sensational because its five markers were clustered in the ninth to break a 1 to 1 deadlock and bring the Brewers a 6 to 1 triumph over the seventh-place Louisville Colonels.

Indianapolis, trailing last-place Kansas City 3 to 2 going into the last of the fourth, poured across five runs. But the Blues made two runs in the fifth and two more in the eighth to tie the count at 7 to 7. The Tribe fetched home another run in its half of the eighth, however, and won 8 to 7.

Third-place Columbus divided a pair with fifth-place Minneapolis, copping the first, 6 to 2, and losing the second, 4 to 3.

The St. Paul Saints grabbed the opener against Toledo 6 to 5, but the Mudhens took the second, 5 to 4.

(GREETINGS, FRIEND)

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called "Coke"

...or how to get acquainted in Mexico

Americans soon feel at home in Mexico. Down there you'll hear a new kind of saludo as homey as Main Street. It's Have a "Coke". It means "Howdy, neighbor" from Terre Haute to Tampico. BLIND AMERICANS HELP WAR EFFORT

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 14 — Blind Americans, their defects turned to the war effort, have received more than $1,000,000 in government contracts through sheltered workshops during [illegible]

[illegible] Migliore of New York, general manager of the National Industries for the Blind, traced the growth of his agency's activities through an address prepared for the biennial convention of the American Association of Workers for the Blind.

National Industries was founded by the American Foundation for the Blind as a non-profit allocating agency for government orders under the Wagner-O'Day act. The initial order from Uncle Sam was received Jan. 1, 1939, and within the year 36 workshops for the blind were participating, making pillow-cases, mattresses, dish cloths, mop handles, cocoa mats, mailing bags and assorted mops and brooms.

"Now the primary goal of federal legislation making the program possible is to supply wages to the blind, said Kleber, "the most important fact to me is that during 1942 the blind persons in these 56 workshops received more than $1,000,000 in wages on government contracts alone."

To keep our "air umbrella" over Nazi-land requires thousands and thousands of planes and millions of barrels of gasoline and ton upon ton of T.N.T. The War Bonds you buy will help a lot. "Figure It Out Yourself."

PROFIT SALES TRIM GAINS

Stocks, However, Continue To Lean Toward Higher Levels Today.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 14—Stocks continued to lean toward higher levels today but gains in many leaders were trimmed or erased by profit selling. Narrow advances were well distributed near the fourth hour but a few key industrials were slightly lower.

Early buying interest was attributed partly to the reports of progress in the Sicilian campaign. But this did not change the notion of a considerable number of market followers that caution still was a good policy in view of the fact July marked the sixteenth month of almost continuous rise.

Stocks on the plus side most of the time included American Telephone, Kennecott, Anaconda, Westinghouse, Montgomery Ward, Texas Co., Chesapeake & Ohio and Pepsi-Cola. Steels and General Motors had no animation and some of the rails wilted after trying for better prices.

Some market students were impressed by recent signs of revival in the rails. Loss of production at mills as an aftermath of the coal stoppage seemed to handicap the steels.

U. S. Bug Fighters Balk Rear Attacks in Tropics

Dr. St. George examines cloth impregnated with anti-termite substance.

By JOHN GROVER
Associated Press Writer

BELTSVILLE, Md.—Bugs that literally eat the pants off U. S. soldiers are not the least hazard of tropical warfare.

Until U. S. Department of Agriculture entomologists came to the rescue, Yank troops in the tropics were in danger of going into battle like Gunga Din, wearing "nothing much before and rather less than 'arf o' that behind."

Tropical uniforms are cotton. Cotton is mostly cellulose. Cellulose is ice cream and cake for termites. Tents, parachute harness and other cotton equipment were in constant danger of "evaporating" if left on the ground for an instant.

Termite-Tamer

That's where Dr. Raymond St. George, termite-tamer extraordinary at the Agriculture Department's experimental farm, stepped into the picture. Dr. St. George hasn't got anything against termites personally, but his job is to perfect bigger and better stomachaches for them.

Most of his previous work has been concerned with protecting wooden structures from termites. Wood is cellulose, too. Damage done by termites runs into the hundreds of millions annually.

The job of keeping tropical troops presentable, or at least decent, is only partly done. Dr. St. George's chemical stomachaches for termites are strictly military secrets, but the bare outline of his test methods gives a hint just how big his job is.

Uniform fabrics are protected by impregnating the cloth with chemicals which repel termites. That sounds simple enough, but back of it may be months of patient experiments.

Chemically Protected

First, the Army Medical Department must conduct a separate series of tests with each compound to determine whether they are toxic to man. Then the chemicals must pass many tests devised by Dr. St. George and other Department of Agriculture scientists. While Dr. St. George is cooking up indigestion for his termites, other experts are working with compounds to retard mold and mildew.

Most of the tests are done in a special laboratory. Patches of fabric, one impregnated and one untreated, are exposed to a colony of termites. The extent of damage after a stated period determines the rating of the chemical as a termite repellent. That's only half the story, though. After the laboratory tests, field tests must be made with each chemical.

Impregnating compounds already are in use by the Army. Dr. St. George aims at finding a better one. When he's finished, there won't be any danger that a Yank in the tropics will suddenly discover that while he was sitting down to lunch in the field the seat of his pants was lunch for a termite.

WEAKNESS OF RYE UNSETTLES GRAINS

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 14—Weakness in rye, which dropped more than a cent at times as stop-loss orders to sell were uncovered on the downgrade, unsettled other grains today. Although selling pressure was not heavy, interest in grains appeared to have slumped materially and volume was on a rather small scale.

There was some mill buying of wheat at the start, pushing prices up fractionally, but this soon dried up and the bread cereal declined about a cent below the previous close when more hedging came into the pit. Oats were firm during the first hour but then backed down with other grains.

Plowing garden ground in the fall before the ground freezes gives the weather a chance to break up the soil. Alternate freezing and thawing followed by proper preparation in the spring will make it loose and pliable for planting. However, sandy soil will wash badly if plowed during heavy rains. It should be covered with manure and mulch, or sown to some winter cover crop.

LONDON MAY STUDY RUINS

Bombing Clears Way for Excavation of City As Stood Roman Times.

By International News Service

LONDON—The Luftwaffe has presented British archeologists with the chance of a lifetime.

For beneath the bombed buildings of the city of London there lies 100 acres of Roman London.

Never before has there been such a golden opportunity for a planned excavation of the City of London's secrets.

If it is not undertaken before rebuilding begins, the chances may be lost forever, and to allow this to happen, British experts declared today, would be a national disgrace.

Excavations Planned

The British ministry of work is alive to the need for plans for the excavations if they are to be put into operation as soon as the labor is available after the war.

Discussing the excavation work with International News Service an official of the ministry of Works said:

"Roman London covered 330 acres and a considerable proportion of that area has been devastated by bombing. It will have to be rebuilt. Practically all of the destruction was caused by fire. There were few bomb craters to disturb the foundations.

Deep Digging Necessary

"The new buildings and the new roads will involve deep digging because of the need for much deeper basements and deeper sewers. This deep digging is certain to touch Roman levels, and when it takes place may destroy all evidence of Roman and Saxon times in the city.

"Thus, this may well be the last opportunity of increasing our knowledge of this part of Roman London, and it may be lost forever if the area is not examined under skilled archeological supervision.

"We have been considering which parts of the devastated area are most important archaeologically and find that a street approximately in line with Cheapside was an important one in Roman times. The area north of St. Paul's cathedral is also important.

"There is reason to suppose that there were Roman buildings all over the area in question, so that the whole area should be dealt with scientifically before rebuilding begins.

Careful Timing Needed

"Naturally, property owners and those interested in business will want rebuilding to begin as soon as possible, but it should be possible by close collaboration and careful timing to satisfy both owners and archaeologists. There must be no interruption of the rebuilding."

The ministry of works official added that it was not just a question of searching for Roman sculpture, pots, coins, etcetera for museums. It was hoped by excavations to be able to reconstruct a picture of the buildings and everyday life of Roman London, just as it had already been possible, through excavation, to obtain a complete picture of the life in the Roman town of Caerwent, between Chepstow and Newport, in Monmouthshire.

There are other cities in Britain, such as Canterbury and Exeter—both Roman towns—where the same problem arises.

Raymond Scott Musical To Be New CBS Feature

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 14 — Now that Frank Sinatras' bandbox is not to be heard on Friday nights, transferring to Mondays, that left a space to fill on CBS. So, it has been decided to develop another "musicale," this one to be described as Raymond Scott's show at 11:30.

What's more, it will have a singing star whom the network describes as a "new discovery." He is Jack Smith of Hollywood.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

I DO NOT believe Ruth Hayes ever suffered such a moment of humiliation of her life as when I stepped out of the closet and she realized that I had been a hidden auditor of the verbal flaying Dicky had just given her. It was bad enough to have had to endure the revelations of the treachery, the knowledge of Jack's contempt, and above all the realization that Dicky knew she had offered herself to Jack and been refused. But to know that another woman, and that one myself, whom she hated, had overheard everything, must have been so maddening that it would have been impossible to hold back an outburst of fury.

"Don't you touch me!" she shrieked. "Don't you dare! I'll claw your eyes out if you come near me!"

"Softly! softly!" Dicky admonished her mockingly. "Mrs. Graham won't hurt you if you behave yourself. If you don't I shall have to stand by while she turns you over her knee and gives you a sample of the punishment your parents criminally neglected to give you when you were a child."

He suddenly made his tone savage, menacing.

"And don't make any mistake! I mean just that!" he said. Then he spoke to me in his ordinary courteous tones.

"Madge, just take this gun, will you, please? Unload it and toss it into the closet where you had a box seat for this performance. Interesting, wasn't it?"

"Very," I said briefly, for I had no wish to infuriate Ruth Hayes further. I obeyed Dicky's directions about the gun, and when I came back from the closet, he shot a question at me.

Will Hobble Her

"Got any cord strong enough to hobble this baby's wrists and ankles?" he asked.

I went to my bureau and took from it a ball of cord I kept for doing up parcel post packages.

"I think this will do," I said, and he nodded.

"Perfect!" he commented. "Please cut off two suitable lengths, and then come and take this gun and cover this dame while I tie her up."

I cut the cord as he wished, put down the shears, and as I went toward him with the cord, pulled out my own tiny silencer pistol from its hiding place.

"I have my own gun," I told him. "I'll just hold that on her, if you don't mind."

"Right!" Dicky approved. "No use taking chances with this lady."

Ruth Hayes decided to take a sarcastic attitude.

"I can't believe my eyes!" she sneered. "High-brow, Puritan Madge, with a revolver, just like a gun-moll!"

Madge a Good Shot

"Yes, you'd know more about those," Dicky said judicially. "But don't make any mistake on one point, lady," he said, his voice suddenly steely. "My wife may not be a 'wilderness woman,' but she's a dead shot with a revolver, and she's not a bit nervous. So watch your step while she's holding that gun on you, and don't stage any ructions while I tie your feet and hands. Her trigger finger gets jittery sometimes."

"I know when I'm licked," Ruth Hayes said sullenly, as Dicky began the work of binding her ankles and wrists, while I leveled the revolver at her.

"Now, Madge," he said when he had finished, "you come over here and satisfy yourself that she hasn't any more weapons concealed on her person. Make it a thorough job. Strip her if you have to.

Won't Let Go

"I'll assure both you and her"—there was mirth in his voice now——"that I'll keep my eyes tightly closed while the party's going on. But I won't let go my grip on her arms, and as she can't kick or claw, you ought to have a comparatively easy time."

As he paused, Ruth Hayes' voice sounded in venomous speech.

"If you do this to me, Madge Graham, I'll take it out of your hide if I have to wait ten years!"

"I'm sorry, but I'm afraid I shall have to take that chance," I said evenly.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Diet of the Future

IT MAY shock my readers to know that such an eminent authority on diet as I am was not invited to be a delegate to the International Food Conference at Virginia Hot Springs, but such is the case. I was not invited for the same reason that a steel worker will not be invited to be a delegate at the peace conference. I am a practical man, and the boys at Virginia Hot Springs were just nice, sweet little theorists floating around in a rarefied atmosphere all their own.

I do not, in spite of the slight which was put upon me by this omission, however, share the indignation which my colleagues of the press voiced: their complaint being that the conferences were held in private, which excluded them from the debates.

I accept the only explanation which makes any sense as to why the conferences were held in private—that advanced by Mr. Frank Kent, the columnist. Mr. Kent said the reason the conferences were held in private was that nothing was going to happen at the conference.

Mr. Roosevelt threw out the suggestion one day that an international conference on food should be held, and then promptly forgot it. But some of his people in the Department of Agriculture took him seriously, and then asked the President what they should discuss. He hadn't the faintest idea whatever; who, and even what, had suggested the idea to him had entirely slipped his mind. But there the boys were with a conference on their hands, delegates invited and on the way, so the only way to cover up was to throw a smoke screen of secrecy around the whole affair. If nobody knew what happened at the conference, nobody would know that nothing happened.

Of course, the delegates had to talk about something and one or two hints have slipped out. That massive intellect—Surgeon-General Thomas Parran—according to my newspapers, gave out an interview in which he expressed one of the only two ideas he ever had. One was to the effect that the world was going to have to eat more vitamins, and that the proper dietary allowance for an adult male at moderate work is 2,500 calories day. This shop-worn and shabby piece of half-information has been kicking around the nutrition laboratories of the world for nearly half a century, and if that is what the conferees talked about, no wonder they were ashamed to have anybody listen.

The other leak dripped from Mr. Paul Appleby, Under Secretary of Agriculture. It concerned an international two-price system for food surpluses. Inasmuch as the Department of Agriculture has managed to jockey the most fertile country in the world into a food shortage, it seems a little visionary for one of their representatives to be talking about what to do with surpluses. The way this idea of Mr. Appleby's works is for France to be told it can't raise any more wheat, but that we will supply them. I can just see the French farmer obeying that fool order.

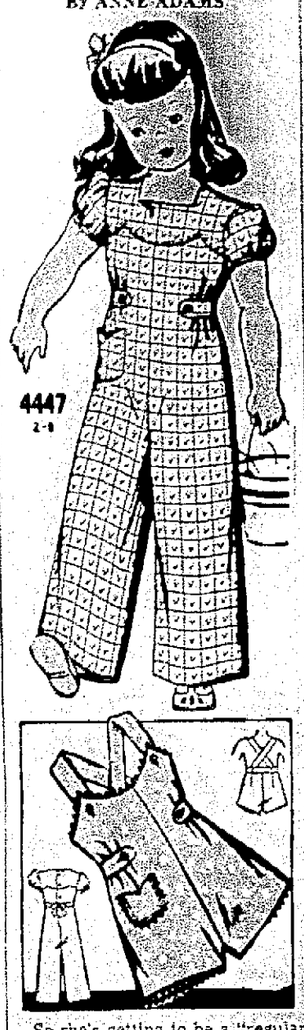

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. R.: What is a thickened pleura? What causes it, and what can be done to clear it up?

Answer: The pleura is the covering of the lung. It is ordinarily protected from bacteria by its position deep in the body, but any inflammation of the lungs—pneumonia and tuberculosis are the common ones—may reach out to the pleura and cause inflammation. After the inflammation subsides, the pleura remains thickened. Nothing can be done to help it, but it causes no harm after the acute stage has subsided.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, July 15

A RATHER adverse or portentous state of affairs is read from the predominant astral influences. Primarily, there seems to be a condition of doubt, confusion, perplexity. Perhaps personal appeal or social influence or intervention may be most powerful in unraveling obscure or threatening situations.

Refrain from impulsive, reckless or erratic moves, lest these estrange and defeat cherished aims or alienate those of sentimental attachment.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of unusual or peculiar situations, calling for much prudence, discretion and direct action in order to circumvent deep laid plans and schemes. While this menace may affect the business or professional associations they are likely to have unhappy and regrettable reactions on the intimate affiliations. There may be estrangements or separations, unless clever grasp and defeat of pernicious forces be exerted.

A child born on this day may be sensitive, perhaps needy and self-conscious to its detriment, causing it sorrow and separation, probably through sinister undercurrents. Its social and sympathetic appeal may assist it to ultimate good fortune and favor.
